With our nation facing the unprecedented Coronavirus, we wanted to share with you precautions and planning strategies being implemented by the City of Dickinson. The priority is the health and safety of our residents as well as our City employees. With that said, for now the City is operating at a business as usual status. However, with the fast moving impact of the virus, we may have to react accordingly. Such impact may mean the closing or minimal access to some City facilities. We will also be considering changes to our operations and services as conditions change. Again, all of this depends on the local impact. We are maintaining consistent communication with our local health officials to be able to make informed decisions. As has been stressed by health care officials, staying calm and implementing precautionary measures is the best way to prevent individual infection. Here are some helpful tips:

1. Wash your hands thoroughly with soap and warm water.
2. Avoid touching your face with unwashed hands
3. If you feel sick, stay at home. The most common symptoms of the virus are a fever, shortness of breath, and a dry, hacking cough.
